If We Had but a Day.

We should fill the house with the sweetest things,
If we had but a day;
We should drink alone at the purest

springs
In our upward way;
We should love with a lifetime's love in an hour,

If the hours were few;

We should rest, not for dreams, but for fresher power

To be and to do.

We should guide our wayward of wearled

Wils

By the clearest light;

We should keep our eyes on the heavenly hills, In they bay in sight; We should trample the pride and the discontent

Beneath our feet; We should take whatever a good God with a trust complete.

We should waste no moments in weak

regret,
If the day were but one:
If what we remember and what we forget
Went out with the sun;
We should be from our clamorous selves

We should be act free,
act free,
To work or to pray.
And to be what the Father would have us be,
If we had but a day,

BALLADE OF A SHIP

By EDWIN ARLINGTON ROBINSON.

On November 25, 1120, the White Ship wink by striking a hidden reef, and all on board were lost. The only son and heir of Henry Beauciere, King to Emissand, was lost with his sister, and when the cutastrophs was told tie King he never smited again. The wreek courred on a clear moonlight hight, while the whole ship's company, with the Prince at their head, were carousing and drinking.

Down by the flash of the restless water

The dim White Ship like a white bird lay;
Laughing at life and the world they sought her.

And out she swung to the silvering buy.

Then off they flew on their roystering way.

And the keen moon fired the light foam flying

Up from the flood where the faint stars play,

And the bones of the brave in the wave are lying.

Twee a king's fair son with a king's fair daughter,
And full three hundred beside, they say,—
Revelling on for the lone, cold slaughter
So soon to seize them and hide them for aye;
But they danced and they drank and their souls grew gay,
Nor over they knew of a ghoul's eye spyling
Their splender a flickering phantom to stray
Where the bones of the brave in the wave are lying.

Through the mist of a drunken dream they brought her (This wild white bird) for the sen-flend's prey: The pittless reef in his hard clutch caught her.

And hurled her down where the dead men stay.

A torturing silence of wan dismay—
Shricks and curses of mad souls dying—
Then down they sail to slumber and sway. Then down they sank to slumber and sway Where the bones of the brave in the wave are lying.

ENVOY.

Prince, do you sleep to the sound alway
Of the mournful surge and the sea-birds' crying?—
Or does love still shudder and steel still slay,
Where the bones of the brave in the wave are lying?

"I had an eruption appear on my chest and body and extend upwards and downwards, so that my neck and face were all broken out; slao my arms and the lower limbs as far as the knees. I at first thought it was prickly heat. But soon scales or crusts formed where the breaking out was. Instead of going to a physician, I purchased a complete treatment of the Cuticura Remedies, in which I had great faith, and all was astisfactory. A year or two later the eruption appeared again, only a little lower; but before it, had time to spread I produced another supply of the Cuticura Remedies, and continued their use until the cure was complete. It is now five years since the last attack, and have not seen any signs of a return. I have taken about three bottles of the Cuticura Remedies, and continued their use until the cure was complete.
